Overview

For companies that want Sendmail-grade protection against spam and viruses, without the capital and operating expenses of managing an in-house solution, our Sentrion Cloud Services app provides a managed, Software-as-a-Service (SaaS) solution for email security.

Audience

Security and messaging departments that want to protect the company against ever-increasing volumes of spam and malware, without taking on the capital and management expenses of an in-house solution.

Key Features and Functionality Overview

IT budgets grow and shrink, year by year, in response to changing economic conditions and business priorities. Spam and viruses, unfortunately, never shrink—they only grow. Keeping up with the ever-increasing volume and virulence of email-based attacks can be a challenge. For many companies, it makes sense to outsource the challenge to a dedicated expert with virtually unlimited technical capacity and know-how.

With our Cloud Services, any company can count on enterprise-class spam and virus filtering—without the budget and staffing uncertainties that can sometimes leave an in-house solution a step or two behind the latest exploit. By adopting a SaaS solution managed by an industry leader, you have protection that's always up-to-date no matter what other tasks your IT staff needs to attend to. And by trading unfixed capital expenses for predictable operating costs, you can confidently devote more resources to the IT projects that advance your core business.

Your inbound mail stream arrives at the network gateway already scrubbed clean from spam and viruses, so your infrastructure is never burdened with the need to process swelling volumes of unwanted email. You're free from the fear that a rapid spike in traffic will cause a network outage, or the pressure to continually add more infrastructure to prevent that from happening. And you benefit from the global threat analysis, agile defense and unremitting innovation that can only be provided by a company whose number-one job is to keep businesses like yours secure. Using Cloud Services, you get:

- The industry's most effective IP reputation, anti-spam, and anti-virus services, all applied to incoming email before it reaches your organization
- The industry's easiest-to-use web interface
- Affordable, per-seat/per-year billing for predictable IT budgeting
- More time for your IT staff to devote to projects that improve business efficiency and generate revenue
- Lower complexity in your own network for better service and performance
- Better, faster protection that's never out-of-date, with fully redundant data centers that never go down

If you're tired of adding new servers each year to deal with increasing volumes of junk mail and malware that you'll only throw away, why not let our Cloud Services do your garbage collection? Some people would say it's a dirty job, but we enjoy it. And no one does it better.
